Rules for installations of Satellite dishes within Brf Fanö

Satellite dishes may not be installed on the buildings without a written permission from the Board. When a permission is granted, a separate contract is written where the issue of liability is specified. The application form can be found in the archives under "Satellite Dishes" on Fanös website.

The application must be approved before the installation begins. Remember to specify on the application where and how you will install the dish.

The following rules apply to the installation of a satellite dish, after a written permission has been granted by the Board:

- Satellite dish with fastener may only be installed on the inside of the balcony rails.
This rule also applies to residents with a patio.
- The satellite dish may not obstruct the view from neighbouring apartments.
- The satellite dish may not be installed on the building walls, on sheds, or on the floor.
- The satellite dish may not be installed on the balcony rails.
- You are not allowed to drill holes in the communities property.
- The satellite dish must be installed in such a way that there is no risk of it falling and damaging people or property.

These rules also apply to any other types of outside antennas.

Clarification from the Board: a wrongly installed satellite dish, without the permission from the Board, will be taken down and restored on behalf of the resident.
